

Orlando Orthopaedic Center's 2009 5th Annual Cutting Edge Concepts in Orthopaedics & Sports Medicine Seminar

For the fifth consecutive year, the Orlando Orthopaedic Center hosted a continuing education program to benefit the University of Central Florida Student Athletic Trainers' Organization (UCF SATO). The 2009 5th Annual Cutting Edge Concepts in Orthopaedics & Sports Medicine seminar was hosted on the campus of Lake Brantley High School on January 31, 2009. And once again, attendance at this year's program shattered the previous record held last year.

Bob Hammons, M.Ed., ATC, LAT Continuing Education Coordinator for Orlando Orthopaedic Center, feels that the continued growth in popularity of the program can be attributed to its primary objective. "Our goal is to deliver a high-quality program for an affordable fee while raising funds for future athletic trainers, so as long as we keep doing that, more and more folks will want to attend our program," says Hammons.

A total of 423 registrants were in attendance. The increased attendance also meant an increase in proceeds, and $2000 was donated to the UCF SATO which will put the funds towards scholarships and assisting with the costs of sending athletic training students to meetings and conferences.

The program was not only educational; attendees enjoyed the exhibit area as well as door prizes featuring autographed memorabilia from several NFL & NBA teams.

Pictured:

Left to Right: Mitch Salter UCF Athletic Training Clinical Coordinator, members of the UCF SATO, Bryan L. Reuss M.D. Orlando Orthopaedic Center, & Randy S. Schwartzberg, M.D. Orlando Orthopaedic Center

Attendee's making the rounds to the vendors at the 2009 5th Annual Cutting Edge Concepts in Orthopaedics & Sports Medicine Seminar.

For information about our future seminars or other continuing education opportunities please contact Bob Hammons M.Ed., ATC, LAT at rhammons@orlandoortho.com.