

CALENDAR OF EVENTS	WEEKLY UPDATE
	MAKING THE NEWS
Monday	Dr. Korosec Quoted Nationally On June 19th 2006 the Orlando Sentinel published an article entitled "Americans adapting to the 32-hour day – multitasking lets you cram more activity into waking hours but leads to overload." This article was also published by other papers nationally, and it was run by the San Jose Mercury News, the Houston Chronicle, the Orange County Register, and the Austin American-Statesman.
Tuesday
Happy 4th of July
Wednesday
Thursday	In this article President Hitt shared his hectic schedule, and Dr. Korosec was consulted based on her specialization in information technology and productivity. In regards to information overload Dr. Korosec stated "This creates a burden for society – people having no downtime. There is no time when people can't be reached, so we see stress levels increasing. It also creates an opportunity for people to shirk some responsibilities, because they can say they worked on their lunch hour, so they're entitled to a little time off back in the office."
Friday	MNM Student - Jennifer Hartzler - Makes the Orlando Sentinel The Orlando Sentinel ran an article on June 25th entitled "Mind on Economics," which stated that Jennifer Hartzler of Oviedo is one of 10 students selected for Florida's Gubernatorial Fellowship program. Hartzler, 22, has a bachelor's degree in economics and is pursuing a master's degree through the Nonprofit Management Program at the University of Central Florida. This is the third group to participate in the program, which is designed to provide leadership training to graduate and undergraduate students interested in public service. Fellows are paid to work on special projects related to their fields of study, and they also participate in seminars and attend policy, budget and legislative briefings. City Manager of Maitland Speaker in Doctoral Course Dean Sprague, the City Manager of Maitland, was asked to be a guest lecturer in the doctoral course "Special Topics Issues in Public Affairs" As a representative of public administration, Dean was asked to discuss his perspectives on the role of a city administrator in today's hyper-turbulent political environment and the unique challenges (political and administrative). The students were most appreciative of his 'real world' orientation. The three Turkish doctoral students (who are uniformed police offers in their homeland) were impressed by his openness--something one of them indicated never happens back home among public officials.